

THE TICKET

by Cecilia Wichmann

Category: Contemporary Suspense / Small-Town Thriller

Audience: Adult readers, book clubs, regional interest readers

Short Description:

Rachel Mercer lives a quiet life in Wills Point, Texas, working the phones at a call center and keeping mostly to herself. One ordinary stop at a convenience store changes everything when her Powerball ticket wins 1.8 billion dollars. Overnight, privacy disappears. Rumors spread online, strangers begin watching her home, and danger starts closing in. With help from trusted allies, Rachel must learn fast how to protect her finances, her identity, and her future while deciding who she can trust and who she must leave behind.

Set in recognizable East Texas towns and locations, the novel blends suspense with small-town realism and has been especially popular with readers who enjoy local settings and relatable characters.

Why it fits your shelves:

- Regional interest title set in East Texas
- Ideal for book clubs and community reading programs
- Strong appeal for readers of clean suspense
